Thales

Thales provides services for the aerospace, defence and security markets worldwide. To support a major new contract jointly awarded with Boeing it appointed The Interiors Group to plan and implement key areas of the design of a new building on a business park in Bristol close to its existing offices. This fast track project had a start date of one week after appointment with a design brief that included break out areas, creative thinking areas, project simulation rooms and the construction of a high specification comms room.

Our client said:

“Out of the three contenders we interviewed for this fast start project, The Interiors Group stood out head and shoulders above the others, they had a cohesive team approach and demonstrated very clearly how they would deal with the issues and risks associated with our project..”

Paul Astle, Operations Manager

Board Room

As part of the award of contract we worked closely with project architects Scott Brownrigg who produced the original documentation for tender of the main contract works and retained throughout to produce detailed drawings. Thales were impressed by our communication and project updates received during the completion of this project. The professionalism and friendliness of Brent Thomson, Project Manager, and his team were particularly singled out as contributing factors to overall success of this project.

Our client said:

“We needed to be sure The Interiors Group had good management processes; they delivered strong reporting with open visibility and the expertise to spot and resolve key issues quickly. This ensured our fast start and finish dates were met on all levels.”
